TWO JUST WEDDED ARE KIDNAPED BY JOKERS IN AUTOS

Machines Carry Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Oldfield Different Directions From Clayton

[By Latest Mail.]

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Somewhere in the northern part of St. Louis county Friday was a high-powered automobile, running swiftly, with Mrs. Clarence Oldfield, 22 years old, of 4056 Kennerly avenue, a prisoner of four men.

Somewhere in the southern part of St. Louis county Friday was another high-powered machine, also running swiftly, with Mrs. Clarence Oldfield, the same age and the same address, likewise a prisoner of four men.

The machines sped from Clayton in opposite directions shortly after 10 o'clock. Their captors are friends bent on celebrating their wedding. Oldfield is a chauffeur, and for three years he and Miss Sanders have been planning to outwit their chauffeur friends and get married without interruption.

They slipped away Friday to Clayton, only to find two automobiles filled with other chauffeurs on hand. During the rice throwing the bride and groom were separated and placed in different machines. One started north and one started south.

When Oldfield pleaded to be allowed to accompany his wife he was told by his captors the next time he saw her it would be "in the evening by the moonlight."

LONDON.—The Daily Telegraph's Rotterdam correspondent says that many German spies were executed in and about Liege before that city fell into the hands of the Germans. He states that the representative of a local newspaper, who had just returned from the scene of the fighting, relates the following:

"The day before the Germans took the city it was reported that a party of English officers was arriving, whereat there was great rejoicing. But soon the cries of joy were turned into execrations, for the nine men who were walking about the city in English uniforms spoke English with a pronounced German accent. Their identity was proved and all paid the customary penalty of spies. That same evening four ladies who were seen walking about excited the suspicion of the police owing to the unusual size of their hands and the breadth of their shoulders. Investigation showed that they were German spies, whereupon they were shot."

CHINESE BANANAS MAY REPLACE IRISH POTATOES IN HONOLULU

"Bananas are pouring into the United States in a flood, and it is to be remembered that they are pronounced several times as nutritious as potatoes."—News Item.

The European war has caused a rise in the price of potatoes in Honolulu, and also of other commodities; and the big Chinese banana which boasts an over-modest value stands in danger of being annexed by housewives, hotels and restaurants to be served in place of the bulbous root which is the staple food of the Irish.

Physicians have declared bananas to be far more nutritious than potatoes; so the housewife may now "kill two birds with one stone," as it were, by going to the market and instead of paying in the neighborhood of $2.25 for a sack of potatoes, purchase a good-sized bunch of bananas for 50 cents, thereby economizing to a great extent and at the same time supplying the family with an article of food even more worthy of eating than the proverbial "Murphy."

Then the person who dines at the restaurant soon may be able to order "Bananas, Au Gratin," or "French Fried Bananas," or even "Banana Soup." The genial waiter might be overheard to say, "How will you have your bananas cooked, sir?" or "Do you prefer your bananas with the jack-knives on?" All of which goes to show that within time, some good use may be found for the long, yellow fruit which grows so abundantly in Honolulu and which never has had much of a commercial value.

DR. E. S. GOODHUE, IN ARTICLE, BOOSTS THE ISLANDS TO DOCTORS

"Why Not Hawaii?" was the subject which Dr. E. S. Goodhue of Honolulu chose for a contribution to Clinical Medicine, a medical magazine, when the editor of that publication called for suggestions for a doctor's vacation. Dr. Goodhue's article, which appeared in the July number of the magazine, is an excellent piece of promotion work; it is high in its praises of Hawaii as an all-the-year round tourist resort, and furnishes information regarding cost of passage, length of voyage, etc., and other matters of interest to a prospective visitor to the islands.

"To be sure, why not Hawaii for the doctor who is lucky enough to get away from home for a month or two?" says the article. "Summer or winter, Hawaii is a good, safe, healthful, comfortable place to rest in for a month, or, for that matter, as long as the visitor can afford to stay."

ADLERS CARRY GUNS AT POINT OF BAYONET.

Infantry charges are being carried right up to the very guns, indicating the desperate nature of the conflict.

The British troops are apparently employing the tactics used by the Japanese before Port Arthur.

They are rushing forward, gaining a few yards at every opportunity, again entrenching until they have beaten down the enemy's fire sufficiently to permit of another rush forward, when the tactics are repeated.

Most of the German artillery is employed and is continually in action.

While the Allies are replying with every available gun, the French are bringing up heavier artillery from the rear, which may turn the tide of the battle.
